

C.I.A. Chief Puts U.S. 'Well Ahead' Of Soviet in Military Technology

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (UPI)—Stansfield Tusnei, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has told Congress that the United States is "well ahead" of the Soviet Union in military technology while China was 15 to 20 years behind the Russians.

Admiral Turner gave his assessment to the Joint Economic Committee on June 23. A summary and some direct testimony were made public today. Other parts of the presentation were made public earlier this month.

Senator William Proxmire, a Wisconsin Democrat, asked the C.I.A. chief whether the Soviet Union trailed the United States in all aspects of military technology. Admiral Turner replied: "I would be a little loath to make a categorical statement that they are not ahead of us in any. They are certainly ahead of us in some areas of application."